Senior Class Honors

Prof. E. E. Tupes

Professor Ernest E. Tupes was chosen as faculty adviser of the June graduating class, at a meeting held on Tuesday, February 12, 1929.

From the time Professor Tupes introduced the Class to the mysteries of the law in general, and of torts in particular, through the succeeding semesters in which he patiently worked with, and aided, the class in mastering the law of real property and future interests, and now in suretyship, this class as a whole and the members of it as individuals have felt his kindly guidance and helpful attitude, and have sincerely appreciated it. As a further token of its esteem, the Class voted to dedicate to him the Transcript of 1929.

The Class then took up the matter of a class gift, and decided to have the gift committee, headed by Douglas Schwantes, obtain suggestions from the faculty for the members to vote upon. The committees on class affairs, cap and gown, and pictures headed by Messrs. Charles Newton, David James, and Richmond Kargman, respectively, were instructed to have reports prepared for the next meeting.

Work Progressing on Transcript of 1929

Work on the 1929 Chicago Kent Transcript is progressing at a rapid pace, reports from the staff indicate. All copy for the regular annual features has been written, and all that remains to be done is work on the picture section.

Contracts for photography and portraits were let last week. Notices concerning the photographers and time for appointments will be posted on the bulletin board.

"Early completion of this year's Transcript depends upon the co-operation of seniors, class officers and fraternities who will have their pictures in the book," declared L. A. Traksl, editor of The Transcript, in commenting upon this year's production. "The book cannot go to press until all photographs have been taken, pictures mounted and cuts made. One tardy senior will hold up the entire year-book."

The staff is making a real effort to embody some law-school humor in this year's edition. In order to make the roast section representative, staff members ask that all students turn in contributions to A. J. Rozniecki.

What Will The Juniors Do?

There are rumors afloat about the College that the Junior Class are cogitating over plans for something new and startling in the way of a class activity. The suggestions include a banquet, a dance, a class day outing, etc. Up to the time of going to press, President Thomas was unable to announce anything definite.

Freshman Class Organized

The members of the first year classes were organized at a class meeting held on the fourth floor Friday, February 15. The meeting was called to order by a member of the Junior Class, J. Warren McCaffrey, promptly at the scheduled time, 6 P. M.

The election of class officers was the important business of the meeting and because of an apparent preliminary slate the routine of the election was orderly accomplished in fifteen minutes. The following men were duly elected officers of the Freshman Class: President, Stromquist; Vice-President, Jones; Secretary, Short; Treasurer, Hunn; Sergeant of Arms, Kelley.

After the election the chairman of the meeting congratulated President Stromquist on his election and resigned as chairman in his favor.
